

I listen to one of my favorite stations as I travel for business in the central US from Mobile, AL to Indianapolis. I love the programming, and appreciate the consistency in my life as I travel to and fro. This station is shared via a translator service.

Many of the areas I travel in do not have this type of programming available otherwise. For those who listen to it - like my wife and me - this is our favorite type of music. It is provided by very few stations. To remove it is to remove all I care to listen to.

I understand that the FCC is considering actions to eliminate the stations that have this type of music that we love - the K-LOVE stations. In central IN I listen to this on 90.5 and 91.5.

This is a type of music that is in the best public interest to keep.

Many people have their lives changed in very positive ways through these stations. It is one thing to prevent a station from going on the air because of a lack of frequency availability, but to shut down a station already on the air is a step towards government control in the worst way.

Sincerely,

Rod McIntyre
